LSU OPERATION REBOUND - KATRINA RELIEF BASKETBALL CLASSIC

LSU's women's basketball program will host the Katrina Relief Basketball Classic in New Orleans as part of "LSU Operation Rebound" with all the proceeds going to Habitat for Humanity and the Friends of New Orleans Recreation Department (NORD).

LSU will face Louisiana Tech in New Orleans Arena on Dec. 30, 2006 as the center point of a weekend of events to benefit "LSU Operation Rebound."

"LSU Operation Rebound" is the brainchild of LSU head coach Pokey Chatman, a native of the New Orleans area, and was created to help the Lady Tigers basketball program rebuild Louisiana.

In addition to the game, a banquet and auction will be held during the Katrina Relief Basketball Classic weekend.

Along with the funds raised by the game, banquet and auction, the Pokey Chatman Foundation has created the Pokey Chatman Century Club, an organization of 100 people each contributing $1,000 to join.

The Lady Tigers program, along with the LSU Athletics Department, the Tiger Athletic Foundation, LSU Sports Properties and the Fast Break Club, has set a goal to raise at least $150,000 for the two charities.

Habitat for Humanity was founded in 1976 by Millard and Linda Fuller and has built and rehabilitated more than 200,000 houses, sheltering more than one million people in more than 3,000 communities worldwide.

Friends of NORD was founded in 1994 as a non-profit corporation created to increase community involvement by providing volunteer services and interest in recreational activities and to raise funds for special projects and improvements for the New Orleans Recreation Department.

BACK-TO-BACK SEC TITLES THREE STRAIGHT NCAA FINAL FOURS

Q: Well, two years, two Final Fours and two SEC titles. What can you do to top that?

PC: When you begin with the end in mind, you set the standard for the highest level of preparation. And that's all I can ever ask of everyone involved. Players, coaches, trainers, managers, and support staff. If that culminates into titles and or championships, then we're moving in the right direction. If it doesn't, I still believe we're moving in the right direction.

Q: You lost almost 50% of your offensive production with the departure of the three seniors. How will you be able to make up for that?

PC: Not only did we lose 50 percent of our scoring we lost one of the best defenders in the nation in Scholanda Hoston. To fill the offensive void we will first look to be a more productive offensive transition team. Once in the halfcourt Sylvia Fowles' game will continue to garner attention and with the emergence of Ashley Thomas, continual development of Kristen Morris and additions of Porsha Phillips and Mesha Williams, I envision the much needed depth in the post to help with spacing for our perimeter players. The perimeter attack, lead by Erica White will get a huge boost from transfer Katie Antony and freshman Allison Hightower. Khalilah Mitchell, Marian Whitfield and Quianna Chaney are all players capable of getting the job done for us and RaShonta LeBlanc is the point guard that started our march for another SEC title and Final Four appearance. The opportunity and experience exist for a number of individuals to step up and fill the void. It will be exciting watching this team grow and develop.

Q: Probably the biggest question the fans and the media have is how will you replace Seimone Augustus?

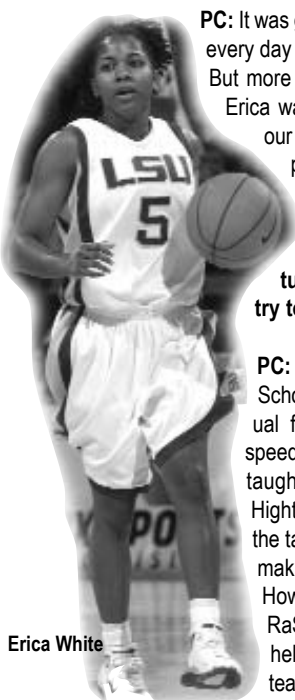

PC: The irony of talking about replacing Seimone is I can take a familiar chapter out of her book. And that was the chapter on TEAMMATES. Seimone's game, as well as LSU Lady Tigers Basketball has always been about team. That's how you replace the most storied player in the history of your program.

Q: Last season two point guards emerged. Now that they are both healthy, how will you handle the position?

PC: It was great having RaShonta and Erica compete every day in practice. It resulted in 14 Straight wins. But more importantly when RaShonta was injured, Erica was ready, and the result was success for our team. Players decided who play with their performance in practice and games.

Q: You lost one of the best defensive players in the nation with the departure of Scholanda Hoston. How will you try to replace her?

PC: It is extremely difficult to duplicate what Scholanda brought to the table as an individual from the physical aspects. Her length, speed, and anticipation is something that is not taught, just enhanced. Physically, Allison Hightower brings a lot of the same attributes to the table, but will only be a freshman, therefore making the adjustment to college basketball. However, several returning players including RaShonta and Khalilah, will be anxious to help us become an even better defensive team than last year.

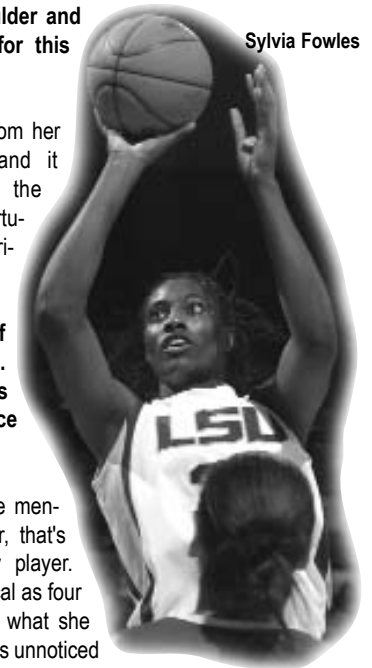

Erica White

Q: How is Sylvia Fowles shoulder and how much will it affect her for this upcoming season?

PC: Sylvia is recovering well from her off-season shoulder surgery and it shouldn't have any affect on the upcoming season. We were fortunate that her injury was not as serious as initially anticipated.

Q: Sylvia showed moments of total domination last season. What does she have to do this year to maintain that dominance for and entire season?

PC: When Sylvia maintains "the mental," she will dominate. However, that's easier said than done for any player. That's why the mental is to physical as four is to one. It's almost unfair that what she brings to the table often times goes unnoticed because it can't truly be appreciated. She takes up space, she screens, she blocks shots, she alters shots, she dives on the floor, she rebounds, she leads the team in deflections and she scores. We're pleased with her progression but won't ever be satisfied. Neither will Sylvia. That is what makes her special.

Sylvia Fowles

Q: Describe how important a player like Ashley Thomas is to your program?

PC: I think Ashley's performance in our Elite Eight matchup against Stanford best signifies her importance to our team. She has a defensive presence, energy, the ability to chase down loose balls, or can score a much needed basket. She's blue collar, she's consistent.

Q: It was hard enough to repeat as SEC Champions, but how difficult do you think it will be to pull off the three-peat?

PC: The nature of the question actually provides the answer of how competitive it is in the league. We will prepare at the highest level and we will compete at the highest level.

Q: The two freshmen coming to the program are highly regarded around the nation. What type of influence on the season do you expect them to have?

PC: I expect both Allison and Porsha to immediately improve our basketball team. They have the mindset and attitude that will allow us to help them reach their full potential. Porsha has the ability and wing span to be effective around the basket on both ends of the floor. And Allison can play any position on the perimeter at the same time she takes great pride in her ability to defend.

Q: Mesha Williams is the first JUCO players LSU has had in a few years. What do you expect from her this season?

PC: Mesha's a mobile power forward that loves to rebound the basketball and runs the floor like a guard. She will give us more quality depth in the post with her ability to be a presence on either end.

There are few coaches in basketball history that can match the success that Pokey Chatman has enjoyed in her first two full years as head coach of the LSU Lady Tigers basketball program.

In her two seasons, LSU has advanced to two NCAA Final Fours, won two Southeastern Conference regular season titles and earned a No. 1 seed in each of the last two NCAA Tournaments. In fact, in Chatman's first 50 games as a head coach, she won an astonishing 47 times. That record of 47-3 is the second best record after 50 games in women's basketball history.

This past season Chatman guided LSU to a 31-4 mark, including a perfect 15-0 record at home and 11 wins against top 25 opponents. In her first season in 2004-05, Chatman led the Lady Tigers to a 33-3 record with the program's best regular season record of 27-1. That season the Lady Tigers were ranked No. 1 in the polls for 11 weeks between November and March.

Chatman has not gone unrecognized for her success as a head coach. She was named the 2004-05 National Coach of the Year by the United States Basketball Writers Association (USBWA) and the Women's Basketball Coaches Association (WBCA) and received the Naismith Award and the Victor Award as the country's top coach. Chatman, the fourth head coach in the program's history, was also named the 2005-06 SEC Coach of the Year and has earned the honor of being named the Black Coaches Association (BCA) Coach of the Year in 2004 and 2005.

The off season is not any less hectic for Chatman. She enters her second year serving on the 27-member WBCA Board of Directors as the BCA representative. Chatman also helped lead the 2005 United States World University Games team to a gold medal as an assistant coach. With Team USA, Chatman coached with Harvard head coach Kathy Delany-Smith to win her second medal in international competition, having also won a medal as a player with the 1990 USA Select Team.

Chatman, a part of LSU's program as a player and coach for 17 years, became head coach in April of 2004 after the late Sue Gunter, a Hall of Fame coach and Chatman's mentor retired, but the task of guiding the team had begun before that for Chatman.

Gunter fell ill during the 2003-04 season and Chatman stepped to the front and seamlessly led LSU to the first NCAA Final Four in school history and a second-place finish in the SEC. Chatman led the Lady Tigers to a 15-5 record in the absence of Gunter from the sidelines. Included in those victories were five wins over top 25 teams, including the school's first victory over a No. 1 seed in the NCAA Tournament, a 71-55 drubbing of Texas in the West Regional Semifinal prior to upsetting SEC foe Georgia in the regional final to advance to the Final Four.

When Gunter announced she would retire after a career marked by 40 years and 708 victories, LSU athletics director Skip Bertman smartly turned to Chatman, an LSU Hall of Famer herself, and an All-American point guard.

The call came on April 27, 2004, when Bertman named Chatman as only the fourth head coach in the history of LSU Women's Basketball.

Chatman had just completed her 13th season on the Lady Tiger staff, and her fifth as an associate coach after being elevated to that position in September 1999. But in 2003-04, Chatman became the most famous associate coach in the country when she took on the role of acting head coach in Gunter's absence, earning the BCA Coach of the Year honors for her efforts in relief.

The way Chatman guided the Lady Tigers through the second half of the season, into March Madness and a trip to the Final Four only added an exclamation point on what everyone already knew about Chatman's coaching potential.

Chatman, who dazzled LSU fans for four years as LSU's starting point guard in the late 1980s and early 1990s, developed a reputation as one of the nation's best recruiters, and one of the top up-and-coming coaches in the collegiate ranks. Chatman led LSU's recruiting efforts over nine years and as a result, the Lady Tigers have had eight straight classes rank among the top 20 in the nation, including the 2004 freshman class which featured three Parade All-Americans in Sylvia Fowles, Quianna Chaney and Erica White.

Chatman helped LSU land another top incoming freshmen class in 2003, in All-American Marian Whitfield out of Georgia, Swedish National team member Hanna Biernacka and New Orleans native Khalliah Mitchell.

The previous years were also highly productive for Chatman. She helped the Lady Tigers land Seimone Augustus, who finished her LSU career as a two-time National Player of the Year and the WNBA's No. 1 draft pick. Chatman also helped sign Aiysha Smith, a Kodak Junior College All-American and the 2003 first-round pick of the Washington Mystics, New Orleans native and current WNBA player Doneeka Hodges and Temeka Johnson, a first-round pick of the Washington Mystics and the 2005 WNBA Rookie of the Year.

Chatman was also responsible for bringing DeTrina White, one of the top 15 rated players in the country in 1998, who went on to become the 1998-99 National Freshman of the Year.

Since joining the Lady Tigers staff, Chatman has tutored some of the finest guards in the country. Marie Ferdinand was a 2001 Kodak All-American selection and a finalist for the prestigious Naismith Award, given to the nation's best collegiate player. In addition to averaging over 21 points a game her senior season, she was a finalist for the Shooting Guard of the Year Award given out by ESPN. Ferdinand, a first round draft pick in the WNBA, is currently playing for the San Antonio Silver Stars and is a three-time WNBA All-Star.

Chatman also worked with Cornelia Gayden, a three-time All-SEC pick who holds the NCAA record for 3-point goals in a single-game with 12 against Jackson State. Other standouts under Chatman include Elaine Powell, a two-time first-team All-SEC selection, Pietra Gay, an All-SEC pick in 1997, and Latasha Dorsey, a first team Defensive All-American in 1999. Powell was the starting point guard in the 2003 World Champion Detroit Shock, while Gay was a member of the 1997 WNBA World Champion Houston Comets.

Before being named to assistant coach prior to the 1992-93 season, Chatman served one season, 1991-92, as a student assistant with the Lady Tigers. Chatman, a Kodak All-American point guard for the Lady Tigers in 1991, graduated from Hahnville High School in 1987. She received her Bachelor's degree from LSU in December of 1991.

During her four years with the Lady Tigers, Chatman started all but one game and was the school's all-time assists and steals leader with 570 and 346, respectively when she finished her career. Chatman held the assist record until the 2003-04 season when current Lady Tigers point guard Temeka Johnson passed her coach for the top spot. She also finished fifth on the all-time scoring list with 1,826 points. Chatman played in the NCAA Tournament four times and posted a four-year record of 82-38.

Chatman was a three-time All-SEC selection and in 1991 led the Lady Tigers to their first-ever SEC Tournament title. Chatman was named MVP of the 1991 SEC Tournament, also a first for LSU.

Chatman capped her career at LSU by being selected to the prestigious Kodak All-American team following her senior season in 1991. Chatman is one of only five Lady Tigers named to the Kodak team. Chatman set a total of 20 school records while at LSU with five of those records still standing.

Chatman was inducted into the LSU Athletics Hall of Fame in the spring of 1999.

AGAINST THE RANKED

The Lady Tigers were 11-3 against top 25 opponents this season. LSU was 2-2 against top five teams and 4-2 against teams ranked No. 10 or higher.

TOP CROWDS

LSU has recorded six of the top 16 crowds in Maravich Center history this season. A sold out crowd of 13,468 saw LSU defeat Arkansas on Feb. 19. That crowd was the fourth largest in history. 10,074 fans saw LSU defeated Mississippi State on Feb. 26, the eighth largest crowd. The 9,930 fans at the Minnesota game on Jan. 7 is the ninth largest crowd, while the 9,511 for the Baylor game is the 11th largest. The 8,480 that witnessed the Lady Tigers' victory over Georgia on Feb. 12 is the 12th largest and the 7,000 for Dec. 28th Michigan State game is the 16th largest.

AMONG THE NATION'S BEST

LSU's average home attendance of 6,273 this season ranks 14th in the nation. The Lady Tigers are second to Tennessee among Southeastern Conference schools.

NON-CONFERENCE HOME STREAK

The Lady Tigers completed its 2005-06 non-conference home schedule with a 8-0 mark, increasing the streak to 34 straight non-conference wins in the Maravich Center. The last home loss to a non-SEC opponent came on Dec. 16, 2001 to Michigan.

30 WINS

LSU recorded its 30th win of the season on March 25 against DePaul. The victory marked the fourth straight second-straight 30-win season for the Lady Tigers and the third in four years. Overall, LSU has reached 30 wins or more four times in the program's history.

SEC CHAMPIONS

LSU won its second consecutive Southeastern Conference regular season championship in 2006 with a 13-1 conference record. The Lady Tigers finished two games ahead of second-place Tennessee. LSU also won the league title last season with a perfect 14-0 mark.

SEC HISTORY

LSU became the first school in Southeastern Conference history to win both the men's and women's regular season titles outright. The Tigers won the league with a 14-2 record, while the women captured the crown with a 13-1 mark. The SEC began its women's basketball sponsorship in 1982.

DOUBLE DIGIT WINS IN THE SEC

LSU reached double digits in the win column in the Southeastern Conference with the victory over Georgia on Feb. 12. The Lady Tigers have now won at least 10 SEC games for the sixth time in school history and for the fourth straight season. LSU's 13 SEC wins are the second most in school history. The school record for conference wins is the 14 reached last season.

AMONG THE NATIONAL RANKS

LSU finished the season ranked in the top 40 in the NCAA in 12 categories. The Lady Tigers finished third in scoring margin, field goal percentage and personal fouls, fifth in scoring defense and won/loss percentage, ninth in rebound margin, 12th in field goal percentage defense, 16th in scoring offense and turnovers, 23rd in assists, 31st in steals and 37th in blocked shots.

LSU PULLS OFF DOUBLE PLAY

LSU has both its men's and women's basketball programs in the Final Four for the first time in school history. Each program is making its third appearance in the Final Four. The Tigers advanced in 1981 and 1986 prior to this season and the Lady Tigers reached the Final Four in 2004 and 2005 in addition to this season. LSU is the fifth school in as many years and the seventh overall to send both its men's and women's teams to the Final Four. Michigan State (2005), UConn (2004), Texas (2003) and Oklahoma (2002) have also accomplished the feat. Georgia in 1983 and Duke in 1999 have also sent both school to the Final Four.
